INDUSTRY DAY 1ST ASSOCIATION OF RESEARCHERS IN CONSTRUCTION SAFETY, HEALTH, AND WELL-BEING (ARCOSH) CONFERENCE

CAPE TOWN
SOUTH AFRICA

4 JUNE 2019

About ARCOSH

The vision is to be the preferred association for researchers conducting research relative to construction safety, health, and well-being (SHW) on the African continent.

The mission is to promote research and development relative to construction SHW, and contribute to the achievement of optimum construction SHW on projects by:

- Promoting research and development to improve construction legislation, systems, processes, procedures, and practices;
- Forming partnerships with research organisations, built environment statutory councils, professional associations, registration boards, tertiary education institutions, and other built environment stakeholders, and
- Promoting collaboration and coordination of construction SHW research between countries.

The goals are to:

- Identify construction SHW issues, and ‘research gaps’ that require attention in terms of research and development;
- Promote and facilitate construction SHW research and development;
- Compile construction SHW guidelines, and practice notes;
- Compile a construction SHW body of knowledge, and
- Promote and contribute to the development and promulgation of construction specific legislation and regulations in African countries.

Objectives of the conference

The conference provides an international forum for researchers and practitioners from developed, developing and underdeveloped nations to address fundamental construction safety, health, and well-being (SHW) issues. The broad objectives of the conference are to:

- Provide a forum for multi-disciplinary interaction between academics, practitioners, and researchers;
- Provide an accredited event;
- Disseminate innovative and cutting-edge practices, and
- Contribute to the construction SHW body of knowledge.
